EASTERN EUROPE "BEYOND THE WALL"

By land: Kraków to Berlin

On January 19, 1989, the head of the East German state exclaimed, "The Wall will be standing in 50 and even 100 years." Ten months later, both he and the Berlin Wall were gone. For 40 years, concrete and wire had physically divided a Germany already ruined by WWII. It had often brought the Communist Bloc and the Western Democracies to the brink of another world war. Back by popular demand, join award-winning author and journalist Ted Barris, and his wife Jayne MacAulay, on a wartime tour of Poland, Czech Republic and northern Germany. This Beyond the Wall itinerary will focus on the wartime events and experiences in Eastern Europe, before the wall was erected, the post-WWII Cold War deadlock and how Europe has changed since the wall was destroyed.
